

Hörmann to showcase new line of timber internal doors at this year's Homebuilding & Renovating Show

Published on 18th January 2018

The UK's leading door manufacturer, Hörmann has a busy year ahead as the company plans a number of events, including its return to the Homebuilding & Renovating show. Following the success of last year's show, Hörmann will not only be attending again, but revealing its latest range of timber internal doors.

This year's event, which runs from the 22nd - 25th March at the NEC in Birmingham, will give visitors the chance to get an exclusive look at Hörmann's latest range of products, and speak to Hörmann representatives for advice and guidance.

Commenting on its attendance at this year's show, Hörmann's marketing manager, David O'Mara, said: "As an industry leader we see it of great importance to maintain a presence at key events, not only to showcase our products but to communicate with our customers about their projects. We have been attending the Homebuilding and Renovating show for over 11 years and each one has been a huge success, so it was an obvious decision to return.

"Following the response to the successful launch of our timber internal doors at last years show gives us high hopes that this year's event is going to be just as successful. The range has been incredibly popular since it launched, so we are delighted to be able to provide homeowners with yet another option for this extremely popular range. We are really looking forward to showcasing our new line of timber internal doors and talking to self builders and renovators from around the UK about their projects."
