High performance and enhanced choice - entrance doors from Hörmann UK

Hörmann have expanded their range of Thermo 65 steel entrance doors to now offer a new acoustic-rated door, additional door styles and accessories, together with increased colour options.

The Thermo 65 door range offers solid construction - featuring a 65mm door leaf, exceptional thermal insulation and can achieve U-values as low as 0.87 W/M₂K. Impressive security is in-built with all doors equipped with a 5-point security lock, with RC2 security equipment available as an option.

A new acoustic-rated door, which includes a thermal break, has been launched to combine both protection against noise pollution along with good thermal insulation. The door provides an acoustic rating category of 3 (43dB) and a U-value of 0.95 w/(m²K).

To add to an already impressive selection of door styles, several new designs have been introduced featuring additional glazing options. Whilst the introduction of one-way plate glass, which is also available for side elements and transom lights, provides an additional opportunity to add light and creative design whilst also protecting privacy. Further enhancing the ability to create a unique front door is the introduction of a range of accessories in elegant Jet-black, which mirror the latest trend for black interior fittings popular in both kitchens and bathrooms. The Thermo 65 black.edition provides both exterior and interior lever handles and matching stainless steel glazing frames which together create a sleek, modern look.

The selection of Hörmann preferred colours available has also been expanded to include a selection of on-trend greys such as Basalt Grey, Dusty Grey and Grey Aluminium. Designed to complement modern architecture these new preferred colours are also available in the Hörmann sectional garage door range, which means that matching entrance doors and garage doors has never been easier.
