Hörmann Dealer Training – book early for next year

With face-to-face training at the Hörmann Academy now back in full swing, the company has announced that it has provided over 424 hours of training in the last six months. With a comprehensive programme covering one and two-day sessions for both the domestic and industrial markets, Hörmann are already formulating their training schedule for 2023 which will be announced to the market in early Autumn.

Based at their Coalville headquarters, the state-of-the-art Training Academy offers dealers installation training on the complete range of Hörmann garage and entrance doors, along with sales and product sessions. Industrial partners have access to training on the installation of industrial doors and dock levellers. Booking for all courses is via an online booking site which provides details on each course and available dates.

To support the in-person training, Hörmann also make available twenty-nine training videos on their company YouTube channel, many of which were created and launched during the Pandemic lockdowns. Offering clear, step-by-step advice and guidance, plus answers to the most frequently asked questions, the online Academy provides immediate and constant access to Hörmann expertise.

David O'Mara, Marketing Manager at Hörmann UK comments, "Training is a key commitment to our dealers and the launch of Training Academy back in 2019 has proved to be extremely popular. During the various lockdowns we moved our emphasis to providing an online solution, which now provides a valuable addition to our in-person training sessions.

Our plans are well advanced for next year and I would advise our dealers look out for our announcements and emails over the coming months, and to book early for 2023 as this year's courses have all been full since the spring."
