Quality Garden Structures to distribute Hörmann storage sheds and boxes

Hörmann UK are pleased to announce that they have entered into an agreement with Quality Garden Structures for the sale and distribution of their range of garden storage solutions throughout the UK. Ideal for the expanding outdoor living/garden market, the range of steel sheds, firewood racks and storage boxes supplied by Hörmann address the growing trend which is seeing the move from traditional wood to more sustainable materials.

Manufactured from high quality galvanized steel for outstanding durability and longevity, the Berry range of garden sheds and firewood racks offer consumers stylish and practical solutions for all of their garden storage needs. Whilst the Juno range of steel boxes are suitable for the storage of smaller items and are ideal for use on small patios and balconies.

Wolfgang Gerner, MD of Hörmann UK comments, "Our range of storage sheds and boxes provides an exciting opportunity for Hörmann, and we are pleased to be entering into a partnership with Quality Garden Structures. They have an excellent reputation in the marketplace and considerable experience of working with leading producers from around the world. We are well prepared with everything in place, and we have plenty of stock available in the UK.

We look forward to developing our relationship with Quality Garden Structures and to a successful venture into what is a new market for Hörmann."

David Jefferies, Director at Quality Garden Structures said, "The Hörmann range of sheds and storage boxes provides us with an exciting opportunity to work with another quality brand. Hörmann is an instantly recognisable brand amongst end consumers, due to the company's market leading position within the garage and entrance door markets.

Their range of Berry sheds and Juno storage boxes will provide consumers with unrivalled quality and a long lasting, low maintenance solution to garden storage with many advantages over the more traditional materials on offer.”
